ELECTROLYSIS HAIR REMOVAL

ELECTROLYSIS IS STILL RECOGNISED AS THE ONLY METHOD OF PERMANENT HAIR REMOVAL

Electrolysis is an FDA and British Medical Association approved method of permanent hair removal. It is widely used for treating anyone, including ladies that started menopause and anyone that experiences hormone fluctuations and wishes to remove hair permanently. It is particularly suitable for small body areas like upper lip and chin. It is very successfully used on all skin types and all hair colours (including white, red and blond) and all hair thicknesses. It can be used close to eyes, and under and between eyebrows. It is performed by a fully qualified and experienced electrologist.

Electrolysis hair removal requires hair to be treated individually. A tiny probe, the size of the hair, is inserted in the hair follicle. A small amount of current is then realised which stops the supply of nutrients to the hair and causes hair death. The number of treatments required varies from person to person and the number necessary is not possible to determine in advance. The number of hairs on an area of tissue can greatly vary from person to person but you will see the difference just after a few treatments. Treatment progress depends on skin sensitivity, moisture in the skin, hair thickness, your commitment and other factors. A treatment plan is discussed at the consultation after examining the treatment area.

Immediately after the treatment there may be some redness and swelling which disappears in time depending on skin type and sensitivity of the skin. A couple of days later some people see tiny pin prick crusts especially on bony areas or where there were ingrown hairs or hair with distorted follicles. These need to be left alone to come off naturally. If you are looking to permanently remove hair, maybe have hair that does not respond to laser or has unsuccessfully tried various forms of hair removal, please call us to book your electrolysis consultation with us. In this your suitability will be discussed and your questions can be answered in detail.

30MIN SESSION - £40

COURSE OF 10: £350
